Cap. 250.

- "medical practitioner" means any medical practitioner duly registered under the Medical Registration Law, or any amendment thereof:
- "mental hospital" means any mental hospital appointed under this Law;
- "mental patient" means a lunatic and includes an idiot or any other person of unsound mind;
- "offence" means an act, attempt or omission punishable by law or enactment.

Inquiry as to the mental state of any person. 3. Any Court, upon the information on oath of any informant to the effect that the informant has good cause to suspect and believe and does suspect and believe some person to be mentally afflicted and a proper subject of confinement, may, in any place which such Court deems convenient, examine such suspected person, and, in the same place or elsewhere, may hold an inquiry as to the state of mind of such suspected person. For the purposes of such inquiry, the Court shall have the same powers as if the suspected person were a person against whom a complaint for an offence had been made:

Provided that such Court may, if it thinks fit, proceed with such inquiry in the absence of the suspected person, and without proof of the service of a summons upon him.

Medical certificate.

- 4. (1) The Court shall also appoint a medical practitioner to examine the suspected person. Such medical practitioner if he considers that the facts warrant him so doing shall sign a certificate (in this Law referred to as the certificate) certifying that in his opinion the suspected person is in fact mentally afflicted and a proper subject of confinement as a mental patient.
- (2) The medical practitioner before giving the certificate shall inquire of any person able to give him information as to the previous history of the suspected person and shall state in the certificate all matters known to him which he deems likely to be of service with reference to the medical treatment of such person.
- (3) The certificate shall specify in full detail the facts upon which the medical practitioner founds his opinion and shall distinguish facts which he has himself observed from facts communicated to him by others.

- (4) No certificate shall have any effect under this Law which purports to be founded on facts wholly communicated to the medical practitioner by others.
- 5. (1) Any person, not being a medical practitioner, who Offences knowingly and wilfully signs any certificate under this Law to with respect in which he is described as a medical practitioner, shall be certificates. guilty of an offence and shall be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one year or to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds or to both such imprisonment and fine.

- (2) Any medical practitioner, who knowingly and wilfuly in any certificate under this Law falsely states or falsely certifies anything shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one year or to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds or to both such imprisonment and fine.
- 6. (1) Where, upon such inquiry as is provided for by this Adjudication Law, it appears to the Court that any person is a mental as mental as mental patient and a proper subject of confinement, and a patient and certificate as by this Law is required of his unsoundness of thereof. mind has been given, the Court may adjudge such person to be a mental patient and a proper subject of confinement, and shall proceed to make an order according to this Law for the care and custody of such patient.

- (2) Any Court may, upon the application of any person, upon being satisfied that a person who has been adjudged to be a mental patient and a proper subject of confinement is of sound mind or has regained his sanity, rescind such adjudication and shall thereupon revoke any such order made in consequence thereof.
- 7. Where, under this Law, any person has been duly Custody adjudged a mental patient and a proper subject of confinement, any Court may order such patient to be confined in a mental hospital or by some person to whom a licence has been issued under the provisions of section 21 of this

8. Any Court may make an order adjudging any person Jurisdiction to be a mental patient and a proper subject of confinement notwithstanding that none of the facts constituting such person a mental patient happened in the district of such Appeals.

- 9. (1) If any Court under this Law adjudge any person to be a mental patient and a proper subject of confinement, or make any order under section 7 of this Law, an appeal by or on behalf of the patient affected thereby shall lie to the Supreme Court, subject to the same conditions as if such patient had been convicted of an offence punishable on summary conviction in respect of which an appeal would lie. Upon the hearing of any such appeal the Supreme Court may confirm, vary or set aside any order of the Court.
- (2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, suspend the execution of any order made by it until the decision of the appeal or for any shorter period, and upon such terms and conditions, if any, as it thinks fit.
- (3) The Supreme Court or any Judge thereof, upon the application by or on behalf of the appellant, may, at any time, and notwithstanding any previous order of a Court, make such order, subject to such terms and conditions, if any, as it or he thinks fit, as to the care and custody or allowing to be at large, until the decision of the appeal, or for any shorter period, of the person adjudged to be a mental patient and a proper subject of confinement.

The Supreme Court or any Judge thereof may vary or revoke any such order.

Apprehension of persons of unsound mind wandering at large. 2 of 41/55.

10. Any police officer who has reasonable grounds for believing that any person wandering at large is of unsound mind and by reason thereof dangerous shall immediately apprehend and, subject to section 11, take that person, or cause him to be apprehended and taken, before the Court to be dealt with under the provisions of this Law.

Removal of person of unsound mind to mental hospital in certain cases. 2 of 41/55.

11. If a medical officer or a police officer not below the rank of Inspector is satisfied that it is necessary for the public safety or the welfare of a person alleged to be of unsound mind with regard to whom it is his duty to take any proceedings under this Law, that the said person should, before any such proceedings are taken, be placed under care and control, the medical officer or police officer may remove the said person to a mental hospital or observation ward designated by the Director of Medical Services for the purposes of this section, and the person in charge of the said hospital or observation ward shall receive and detain the said person therein, but no person
